Textbooks: Drafting Contracts: How and Why Lawyers Do What They Do, 2nd Edition, by Tina Stark, Wolters Kluwer (Aspen), ISBN 978-0-7355-9477-7

 Bargaining for Advantage: Negotiation Strategies for Reasonable People, 2nd Edition, by G. Richard Shell, Penguin Books, ISBN 978-0-1430-3697-5

This course will serve as an introduction to both drafting and negotiation skills. While it is not possible to develop proficiency in two weeks, this course will present the basic concepts and skills to enable you to read, understand and draft the fundamentals of a contract, and better prepare for and handle a negotiation. This course will provide opportunities for you to practice these concepts and to get feedback on your performance.

Note: Regular Spring Semester classes begin on Monday, January 22

We have a week off between the Winter Intersession and the start of the regular Spring Semester.
